National Test of the Wireless Emergency Alert (WEA) and Emergency Alert System (EAS)

On 10/03/18, the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA), in coordination with the Federal Communications Commission (FCC), will conduct a nationwide test of the Emergency Alert System (EAS) and Wireless Emergency Alert (WEA) system.

- The test will assess the readiness to distribute an emergency message nationwide and determine whether improvements are needed.
- At 1118 hours, the WEA test message will be sent to cell phones that are connected to wireless providers participating in WEA.
- At 1120 hours, the EAS message will be sent. EAS is a national public warning system that provides the President with the communications capability to address the nation during a national emergency. The test is made available to EAS participants (i.e., radio and television broadcasters, cable systems, satellite radio and television providers, and wireline video providers) and is scheduled to last approximately one minute.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION

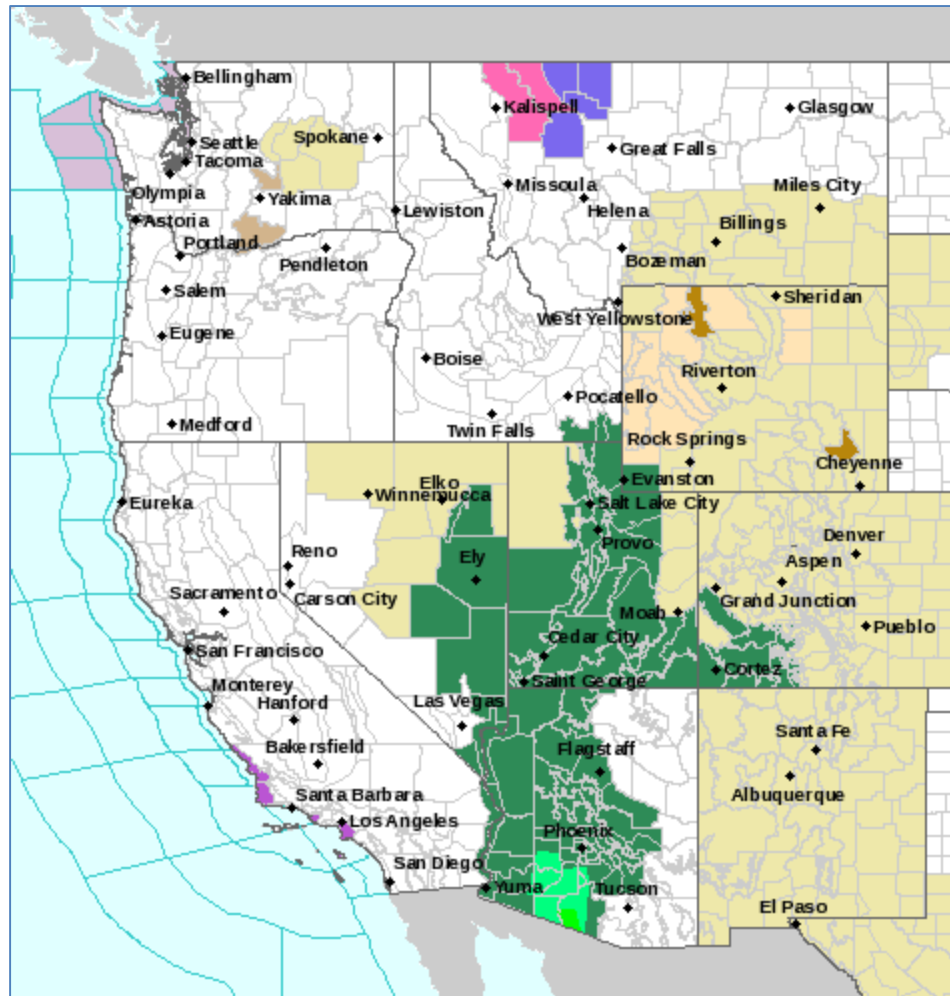

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA

- Cooler and more moist near term, trending much drier by next weekend
- Unsettled weather during most of the week with low pressure system passages.
- Transitioning to a ridge-inside slider pattern Friday with lasting effects into early next week. Confidence high for this weather change.
- Locally gusty S-SW-W winds (gusts 20-30 mph) next two afternoons favoring Shasta Valley and areas along and east of the Cascade-Sierra Crest.
- Increased W-SW breezes area wide Wednesday (gusts 20-25 mph) favoring the Coastal Range and Delta Region.
- Strong N-NE-E wind this weekend and lasting through early next week.
- Increasing rain shower activity today with peak rainfall favoring the Mid Coast-Mendocino last night into today. Additional showers will continue tonight through Thursday and favor the mountains including Northern Sierra. Wetting precipitation will affect western areas, perhaps portions of the N. Sierra Mountains and Bay Area with .25 to 0.75 inch amounts.
- Higher relative humidity (RH) and cooler than normal daytime temperatures through Friday then trending much drier with mixed temperature anomalies but trending warmer weekend into early next week.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

- A low-pressure area currently off Northern California will approach the coast and move inland over Southern California Wednesday. This low will bring up some moisture from Tropical Storm Rosa today. A series of troughs will drop out of Canada into the Great Basin Thursday through next weekend.
- Scattered showers and thunderstorms will form over Southern California from Los Angeles County southward today.
- Scattered showers and thunderstorms will be possible across the entire area today, with widespread showers and thunderstorms Wednesday.
- Rainfall amounts will be highly variable through Wednesday night due to the thunderstorm activity.
- Some mountain and desert locations may receive up to 2 inches of rainfall and some coastal and valley locations may receive up to an inch of rainfall.
- South to southwest winds of 15 to 25 mph with gusts to 40 mph will surface across the wind prone mountain and desert areas through Wednesday.
- Temperatures will be 5 to 10 degrees below normal today through this weekend, with mid 50s to mid 60s across the mountains and 70s to low 80s in the valleys.
- The shower and thunderstorm activity will end across most of the region by Thursday morning, but scattered showers will be possible over the Sierra through this weekend.
- Westerly winds of 20 to 30 mph with gusts to 50 mph will surface across the mountains ridges and desert passes Thursday through this weekend.
